JURORS ADMIT VERDICT ERROR IN COURT CASE

Join With Defense Counsel In Seeking Arrest Of Judgment Here.

FARM PROPERTY WAS INVOLVED

A jury which made a mistake in its verdict joined with counsel for the defendants in a motion for the arrest of judgment filed with Judge Donald P. McPherson in court this morning.

The jurors, through their foreman, John H. Knickerbocker, of Gettysburg, librarians at Gettysburg college, averred that "no member of the jury intended by their verdict to find in favor of the plaintiffs in any sum in excess of $295."

The case in which the "accidental" verdict was returned was the replevin action brought by F. C. Riley and Oliver J. Waybright against George B. Aughinbaugh and Harry L. Turner to recover farm property.

$750 Awarded
In a verdict returned to court Friday afternoon, the jurors awarded $750 and Waybright the sum of $150 against Aughinbaugh and Turner.

J. Donald Swope, Esq., and Eugene V. Bullett, Esq., who represented Aughinbaugh and Turner, immediately drew up a motion for the arrest of judgment in the case, and secured from Mr. Knickerbocker an affidavit setting forth that the jurors had no intention of awarding the plaintiffs more than $295.

In asking the court to halt the payment of the jury award, the defendants' attorneys cited five reasons for "the unusual situation surrounding the verdict in this case."

The reasons offered by the attorneys for the arrest of judgment follow:

Cite Five Reasons
"Because the verdict as entered was not the verdict agreed upon by the jurors and reduced to writing in the jury room.

"Because the verdict as entered was not the verdict of the jury impaneled in this case and was understood by the members of the jury as being their verdict.

"Because the jury entirely failed to determine the value of the good replevied to the plaintiffs.

"Because the jury entirely failed to find as to who was entitled to the possession of the goods replevied.

"Because the verdict of the jury does not purport to find more than money judgment and fails to specify the amount of that judgment."

The plaintiffs were represented by W. Clarence Sheely, Esq., and Raymond F. Topper, Esq.

Uses Airplane To Get Roller Skates

Increasing demand for roller skates influenced George Zerfing, local hardware dealer, to charter an airplane to secure more skates for local distribution.

Miles Kleinfelter, local pilot, and Robert F. Daugherty, an employee of Zerfing's, left this morning for Philadelphia where Daugherty was to purchase more skates and fly back to Gettysburg this afternoon. Mr. Zerfing said the skates were to be delivered early this afternoon.

Gunmen Loot Police Exhibit

Boston, Jan. 27 (AP).—A trio of gunmen early today held up two watchmen at Mechanics building, looted a Massachusetts state police exhibit of shotguns, revolvers and gas bombs and escaped. The exhibit was a feature of the annual automobile show.

The gunmen escaped in an automobile. They took more than a dozen shot guns, as many revolvers and a large quantity of gas bombs of various types.

Police believe the trio hid in an empty truck that stood near the police exhibit until after the automobile show had been closed for the night. The gunmen held up Luten Kerkian and George Mason, both watchmen, as they made their escape.

Boston police immediately notified all stations of the hold-up and state police broadcast orders for all officers to be on the watch for the robbers.

SUCCESS PAYS

Back in 1932 Velma Gresham, Memphis, Tennessee, society girl, thought so much of her chances in the movies that she incorporated herself and sold stock in her career. Five friends invested $20,000. Now Miss Gresham, in Hollywood, says events have justified her belief and she's ready to declare a dividend. (Associated Press Photo.)

Two Veteran U.S. Agents To Escort Roosevelt Here

When President Roosevelt comes to Gettysburg for his Memorial Day address, May 30, he will be accompanied to Gettysburg by several members of the White House staff to whom pilgrimages to the historic battlefields offer nothing new.

Richard Jervis and Colonel Edward Starling, veteran members of the secret service, to mention two, have accompanied every president who has spoken at Gettysburg during the last two decades. The secretariat at the White House changes with every new administration, but behind the scenes are the same men who are not affected by changing political tides.

Jervis and Starling arrange and have charge of every presidential trip. To them Memorial Day visits to Gettysburg have become almost a habit, inasmuch as it has become a custom for very president, since the days of Theodore Roosevelt, to make at least one address on the battlefields during their administration.

The secret service men attached to the White House are charged with the safety of the president. When the presidential train rolls into the station they, and their colleagues, will be the first off. They will be the last to board the train when it leaves. And throughout the address they will be close by the president and his party.

While not known to the thousands who will throng the cemetery here, the men who accompany the president every time he leaves the White House, even for the shortest ride or journey, are known to those who have the direction of local arrangements. And they will be on the job every minute from the time the White House cars roll out for the station, until President Roosevelt is back at the executive mansion.

Mrs. Ella L. Hewitt, mother of John W. Hewitt, Water street, died at 10:45 o'clock, Friday evening, at the home of Mrs. Mary Plantz, 114 East Middle street, with whom she had been residing, from a complication of diseases. Mrs. Hewitt, who was 74 years of age, was the widow of Mr. R. W. Hewitt. She had been an invalid for the past five years.

The deceased is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Harrison L. Guise, of Gardners R. 3; a son, John Hewitt, four grandchildren, one brother, Isaac H. Miller, of Helena, Montana.

Funeral services Monday afternoon meeting at the Plantz home, at 1:30 o'clock with further services at the Bendersville Lutheran church. The Rev. Paul L. Reaser, supply pastor of St. James' Lutheran church here, and the Rev. O. D. Coble, of Bendersville, will officiate with interment at Bendersville.

The body may be viewed Sunday evening from 7 until 9 o'clock. Mrs. Hewitt was a member of St. James' Lutheran church.

Mrs. Clara Hershey
Mrs. Clara Virginia Hershey, 79, widow of Mr. Howard Hershey, of York Springs, died at 3:30 o'clock this morning at the home of Mrs. A. Smith, York Springs, with whom she resided, from a complication of diseases.

Mrs. Hershey was a daughter of the late Peter Hummer, of Hershey, Mill, Tyrone township.

She is survived by two sons, Quincy W. Hershey and Charles G. Hershey, both of Pittsburgh; three grandchildren and one great-grandchild; one brother, Ellsworth Hummer, of Baltimore; two sisters, Mrs. Ida Wolf, of Abbotstown, and Mrs. Hattie Baker, of York.

Funeral services Monday afternoon, meeting at the house at 1:30 o'clock with further services at 2 o'clock from the Latimore Brethren meeting house, York Springs, the Rev. Charles Baker and the Rev. W. G. Group, of East Berlin, officiating with burial in the cemetery adjoining the church.

GUNMEN DEPEND ON LAW TRICKS

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 27 (AP).—Legal technicalities have replaced guns in the fight for freedom of John Dillinger, mid-western desperado and three captured henchmen.

They have shot their way out of more formidable prisons, but they rely today on the strategy of Attorney John L. Van Buskirk to get them out of the county jail here, where they are under heavy guard.

Buskirk planned to seek writs of habeas corpus when bonds were fixed at $100,000 or more for each of the quartet. He laid further plans to resist extradition proceedings to Indiana and Ohio where the mobsters are wanted for murder, and possibly other mid-western states which they terrorized.

Bail for Dillinger and Charles Makley, known as the "hardest guy" of the gang, was fixed at $100,000 each as fugitives from justice. Harry Pierpont, "trigger man" who scoffed at the "small town cops" who trapped him, and Russell Clark also are charged with resisting officers. They are held in lieu of $105,000 bail each.

INJURES KNEE CAP
J. G. Prock, East Berlin R. 4, suffered an injury to his left knee cap in a fall down a flight of stairs this morning. He was brought to the Warner hospital by Dr. Eugene Elgin, East Berlin, for an X-ray examination after which he was discharged.

ROTARY PROGRAM
The George R. Martin family, West High street, will furnish a program of vocal and instrumental music at the weekly meeting of the Rotary club at the Y.W.C.A., on Monday evening at 6 o'clock.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT
A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Donald McClellan, Emmitsburg, at the Warner hospital this morning. Both mother and child are reported doing nicely.

KICKED BY GREECE

There is much speculation about the next refuge of Samuel Insull, 64-year-old former utilities operator who is wanted in Illinois for trial in connection with the collapse of his utilities empire. The Greek government insists he must leave the country on or before January 31. No other nation has offered him haven. Below are three recent pictures of the former capitalist. At left he is shown in a Greek court at a hearing in connection with American extradition proceedings. In the center he is pictured leaving his hotel in Athens. Picture at right was taken in Paris before his flight to Greece. (Associated Press Photos.)

YOUTH ON CYCLE FRACTURES LEG

Tandem Passenger On Motorcycle Injured When Struck By Automobile.

Frank Thomas, 16, Aspers R. 2, suffered a fracture of the right leg at the ankle in a collision between a motorcycle on which he was riding tandem and an automobile, operated by J. Dale Sheaffer, Aspers R. 2, on the Wenksville road, one mile north of Bendersville, at 7 o'clock this morning. Thomas was riding on a motorcycle, driven by Kenneth B. Taylor, 16, Aspers R. 2.

Both the car and the motorcycle were traveling toward Bendersville when Sheaffer sounded the horn on his car and attempted to pass the cycle.

Taylor is said to have driven to the left side of the highway and Sheaffer attempted to pass on the right side. At about the same time, Taylor pulled back to the right side of the highway and his cycle was struck by the car, a motor patrolman, who investigated, said.

Sheaffer brought Thomas to the Warner hospital, where he was admitted as a patient. In addition to the broken leg, Thomas suffered numerous lacerations and contusions. Taylor escaped injury, but his motorcycle was badly damaged.

A local state highway motor patrolman, who investigated the accident, today laid a charge of operating a motorcycle without an operator's license against Taylor. The information was laid before Justice of the Peace D. P. Delap Bendersville.

Mrs. Anna Ross Is Buried On Thursday

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Ross, 82, who died Tuesday morning, at 5 o'clock at the home of her step-son, Herbert Ross, near Emmitsburg, were held Thursday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Joseph's Catholic church, at Emmitsburg. Services were conducted by the Rev. Hulet V. Piper. Death was due to infirmities of old age. She is survived by her step-son. Interment was made in St. Joseph's cemetery.

2 Injured While Roller Skating

Two more accidents as a result of the roller-skating fad which has swept Gettysburg like wild-fire were reported at the Warner hospital today.

David Plank, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Plank, York street, suffered a fracture of the left leg below the knee when he fell while skating this morning. He was taken to the Warner hospital where the fracture was reduced after which he was removed to his home.

While skating, Friday evening, Dorothy Shearer, 8, Buford avenue, fell and suffered a badly sprained right arm. She was taken to the Warner hospital where an X-ray examination failed to reveal any broken bones.

$6,500 Weikert Will Is Filed

The will of H. James Weikert, late of Gettysburg, was entered to probate in the office of Robert E. Fisher, register and recorder, by Mrs. Bertha W. Lühring, of York, a daughter, who was named executrix. The estate is valued at $6,500. Mr. Weikert was superintendent of the Gettysburg water company.

TRAVEL GAINS PREDICTED BY MOTORING BODY

Key Points Throughout East Note Increase In All Traffic.

If present trends in the field of travel continue throughout the spring and summer, Gettysburg and the historic objectives in the vicinity will be the focal point for visitors from all sections of the country and the summer season will be one of the best since 1929.

This statement is based on figures furnished by the Gettysburg Times by the American Automobile association and which disclose that winter travel to southern points—usually a good barometer of business and an index to summer travel—is running from thirty-five to fifty per cent ahead of last year.

Travel to southern objectives by land, aid and water, the AAA reports, is the heaviest since 1929.

Marked Increase
"Southern points," said the national motoring body, "are witnessing a revival of recreational travel, after a period when people stayed at home and were forced to forego contemplated vacations. Rail lines serving the southland report gains in travel ranging as high as 100 per cent. This is particularly true from the east, the section of the country from which Florida and the Gulf coast attracts its heaviest patronage. One line, running a crack train from New York, reports 100 per cent more travel and a four-fold increase in the number of automobiles handled by fast freight."

"Travel bureaus of the AAA at key points throughout the eastern part of the United States also report heavy gains in the number of routings furnished motorists, as compared with last year."

"All this indicates that travel-minded Americans are again going places and that the vacation industry will again be paying dividends to those who cater to recreationists."

GUEST ORGANIST
The Rev. and Mrs. Frederick B. Crane are entertaining Stevens Irwin, of Atglen, Pa., at the Presbyterian manse over the week-end. Mr. Irwin will be the guest organist at the church on Sunday.

GIBSON QUILTS, COURT IS TOLD

Local Justice Must Pay $95.05 Before Final Order Can Be Entered.

Two charges of embezzlement against Neil W. Gibson, Gettysburg justice of the peace, were temporarily marked settled today by District Attorney John P. Butt after the prosecutor presented Gibson's resignation as magistrate to Judge Donald P. McPherson.

Before the final order can be entered by the court, costs amounting to $95.05 in the two actions, must be paid. The costs include an item of $50.25 which Gibson is alleged to have received from a client and failed to turn over to the firm of Bream and Plank, automobile dealers here.

Resignation Letter
Gibson's resignation, which will now be sent to Governor Pinchot, follows:

"I, Neil W. Gibson, do hereby respectfully certify that I am a resident of the first ward of the borough of Gettysburg, Adams county, Pennsylvania, and I am a duly elected and qualified justice of the peace in said borough. I do further certify that I am suffering from a serious illness and at the present time am under medical treatment for same at the Veterans' Administration Facility hospital, in Bronx, New York, and therefore wish to resign my office as justice of the peace."

"I, therefore, pray your honorable court that my office as justice of the peace in the borough of Gettysburg, Adams county, Pennsylvania, be declared vacant by reason of my tender of resignation."

Hoax Hinted In Factor Snatching
Chicago, Jan. 27 (AP).—A charge that John Factor made up his kidnapping story in an attempt to evade extradition to England for an alleged stock swindle appeared today as a major part of the defense plan to save Roger Touhy and three reputed associates from the electric chair.

Touhy's attorney, William Scott Stewart, laid the foundation for this attempt Friday when he began cross examination of Factor, after the latter identified Touhy and others as members of the gang that took $50,000 in ransom to free him last July.

French Cabinet To Resign Today
Paris, Jan. 27 (AP).—Premier Camille Chautemps announced today that his cabinet would resign after a ministerial meeting planned for mid-afternoon to avoid a further "mud bath" in Tuesday's chamber of deputies debate on the Bayonne bank scandal.

The decision to resign was reached after a series of conferences in which Chautemps attempted to consolidate strength to risk possible overthrow in the chamber rather than engineer a quick withdrawal.

MEADE GIVEN 5 TO 10 YEARS FOR SLAYING

Benjamin Hinkle, 61, Gettysburg, Imprisoned For Statutory Offense.

YOUTH IS SENT TO REFORMATORY

Penitentiary sentences were meted out to Charles C. Meade, of Jersey City, and Benjamin Hinkle, East Middle street, by Judge Donald P. McPherson at a session of sentence court this morning.

Meade, who entered a plea of guilty to a charge of slaying William Boxley, a mulatto, of Louisiana, Virginia, at the Littlestown lockup, November 16, and was pronounced guilty of murder in the second degree by Judge McPherson in court here on Monday, after the evidence was heard by the court, was sentenced to serve from five to ten years in the Eastern penitentiary, Philadelphia.

Before Meade was sentenced, S. S. Neely, Esq., of Gettysburg, court-appointed counsel for the accused man, told the court that he had been criticized for not allowing Meade to enter a plea of not guilty and asked for a jury trial, adding that if he had it to do over again he would again advise Meade to enter a plea of guilty.

Blames Drunkness
He pointed out to the court that Meade had no intention of killing Boxley and that neither Meade nor any of the other occupants of the lockup knew Boxley was seriously injured. The attorney blamed Boxley's drunken condition for Meade's act.

District Attorney John P. Butt informed the court he could see no reason why the maximum sentence should be imposed.

Meade took the sentence calmly. Hinkle, 61-year-old resident of Gettysburg, entered a plea of guilty to two serious statutory offenses, and was sentenced to serve from 2½ to 5 years in the penitentiary.

Other Sentences
Other sentences were imposed as follows:

Isley Knupp, 19, of Littlestown, charged with violating the state uniform firearms act, was sentenced to Huntingdon reformatory. He entered a plea of guilty.

J. H. Topper, 28, of New Oxford, charged with failing to stop after an accident in Midway, last October, was placed on probation for one year, ordered to pay the costs and a fine of $50 to Adams county. He had entered a plea of guilty.

Mervin Collins, Germany township, near Littlestown, who was convicted of operating a car while under the influence of liquor in court this week, was sentenced to serve 60 days in jail and ordered to pay a fine of $200 and the costs of prosecution.

Albert Luckenbaugh, Gardners R. D., who entered a plea of guilty to a charge of operating a car while under the influence of liquor, was sentenced to serve 60 days in jail and ordered to pay a fine of $200 and the costs of prosecution.

R. W. Fahs, York, who was acquitted on five charges of fraudulent conversion in court this week, but ordered to pay the costs, was sentenced by Judge McPherson to pay the costs. Detainers are being held here to hold Fahs for York county authorities.

Gray S. Staley, of Waynesboro, was before the court for sentence on a charge of aggravated assault and battery in connection with an automobile accident on the Waynesboro road, near Fountain Dale, in which a truck was driving struck a team, driven by Ira O. Linebaugh, killing two horses. Staley was convicted in court this week. The court directed Staley to return to court on March 5. In the meantime, efforts will be made to effect a settlement.

Joseph Geiselman, Arthur B. Wetzel and Francis Shorb, all of Emmitsburg, charged with setting the automobile of Joseph Kepner here several weeks ago, were before the court for sentence, but were remanded back to jail for sentence later. They entered pleas of guilty.

Injured Ribs Are X-Rayed Here
E. E. Hutchison, North Washington street, who suffered a fracture of two ribs in a fall last Monday, was given an X-ray examination at the Warner hospital this morning after he twisted one of the ribs out of position in bed on Friday night. Mr. Hutchison was on a ladder in his store when the ladder slipped and he was thrown against the counter, breaking two ribs on the right side.

Eugene Martin, former Gettysburg high school athletic coach, is spending the week-end in Gettysburg.

State May Buy Columbia Bridge

Lancaster, Jan. 27.—G. Graybill Diehm, chairman of the Lancaster-York Intercounty Bridge commission, announced Friday officials of the two counties are willing to sell the span over the Susquehanna river from Columbia to Wrightsville to the state department of highways. Samuel S. Lewis, state secretary of highways, asked the commissioners to place a price on the bridge.

The span was built jointly by Lancaster and York counties, and the financial obligation is being liquidated by the collection of tolls.

Mr. Diehm said the state may have the bridge by taking over $2,800.00 in bonds which were floated to raise money to finance the span.

The first block of bonds, worth $50,000, are due in 1935, but the two counties already have sufficient money to liquidate that first obligation.

STOCK REPORT

New York, Jan. 27.—Stocks resumed Friday's irregularity in the early part of today's short session. Values tapered after an active start.

Losses or sizable fractions to around a point occurred in U. S. Steel, Santa Fe, Corn Products, American Can, and Electric Auto-Lite. Bendix Aviation and Consolidated Gas were steady while American Telephone, Dupont and Hamilton showed slight improvement.

ROBBER SEEKS PAPERS IN SUIT

Ties Nurse To Chair After Demanding Papers In "Insurance Suit."

Harrisburg, Jan. 27.—Threatening Miss Amelia Katherine Hancock, 35-year-old nurse, with a revolver, a man Friday afternoon forced his way into her home at 1739 Market street and asked her for papers in "that insurance suit."

When she said that she didn't have the papers, he made her drink a quantity of liquid, believed to contain poison, tied her to a banister, gagged her and ransacked the house. He took about $50 in cash, police believe, but what else he obtained had not been determined last night.

The suit to which the intruder referred is believed to be that which Miss Hancock has brought in the Dauphin county court to get $10,000 insurance money which she claims her former employer, the late Dr. Edgar C. Neely, of this city, intended for her.

Believe It Was Poison
Miss Hancock was taken to the Polyclinic hospital, where an analysis will be made of the liquid she was forced to swallow. Hospital authorities believe that it was poison. Her condition is not regarded as serious.

A sister, Miss Mary E. Hancock, employed at the Devine & Yunkel shoe factory, on returning home from work, found her sitting on a chair, ropes binding her and the chair tied to a banister.

Miss Mary Hancock screamed hysterically and Mrs. Devitt Nye, who heard her cries, came to the home.

Tells Lawyer of Robbery
While Miss Hancock cut the ropes binding her sister, Mrs. Nye summoned the police and a physician. After receiving treatment from the physician, she was taken by ambulance to the Polyclinic hospital, where she told Walter R. Sohn, one of her attorneys in the insurance suit, about the robbery.

Answering the door bell, she was faced by a man who said, "I'm the insurance man," as he pulled a revolver and forced her to ascend the steps leading to the living room, she told Sohn.

"I want the papers in that insurance suit," Sohn said she told him the man demanded.

"I don't have the papers," she replied.

Made Her Drink From Bottle
The intruder made her drink from a bottle which he carried.

Miss Hancock, who was weak from an illness of several weeks, struggled with the man as he bound her by ropes which he took from a brief case he was carrying.

She lapsed into unconsciousness as the man started to ransack the house. He pulled papers from the desk of the living room and threw them on a table and on the floor.

Sohn said that Miss Hancock also told of being awakened several weeks ago by a man on a roof at her home. She summoned the state and city police, she told the attorney.

Relatives Of Wilhelm II Flock To Doorn For His 75th Birthday

Doorn, The Netherlands, Jan. 27 (AP).—Relatives of Wilhelm II flocked to Doorn in anticipation of the seventy-fifth birthday anniversary of the former German emperor.

The villages, whose population has increased thirty per cent since the imperial woodchopper took up his residence in 1919, was in a festive mood—its eating places and garages were doing a large-scale business; the villagers were gladened by gifts of food and kindling, and everyone noted with satisfaction that Wilhelm, who has been laid up with rheumatism, is again taking his customary daily stroll through the village, in high spirits.

The former crown prince and the 85-year-old field marshal, Von Mackensen, one of Germany's most brilliant leaders, are to be among the guests today.

The celebration will be kept almost entirely a family affair and the numerous deputations which applied for permission to congratulate the aged former monarch will not, contrary to custom, be received.

Also among those who planned to come are Wilhelm's only surviving sister, the Landgravin of Hesse, his children and grandchildren, with their families, the count of Wurtemberg and his son and members of the South German branch of the Hohenzollerns.

A special religious service will be conducted at Doorn house by Dr. D. L. Schneller, of Cologne.

The only thing marring the happiness of the family was a series of disquieting reports from Germany indicating that many nazis are far less tolerant of monarchists than were the republicans in pre-Hitler days.

In Thuringia the head of the labor front forbade all members, whether employers or employees, to participate in celebration of the former Kaiser's birthday.

The propaganda minister at Berlin advised German newspapers to give the anniversary only passing mention. High German officials in the last few days have tried to discredit the Hohenzollerns in speeches.

Prince Louis Ferdinand, second son of the former crown prince of Germany, ended his American transcontinental tour of inspection in time to be present for the festivities.

Today's festivities, as usual, will be opened by divine services. Dr. Schneller, who will conduct them, accompanied Wilhelm on his trip to the Holy Land in 1898 and was put in charge of the Protestant chapel in Jerusalem, dedicated by the emperor.

Two Payrolls Are Stolen By Bandits In Philadelphia On Friday.

Philadelphia, Jan. 27.—Four armed men overpowered two girls and stole a $2,376 payroll from the Acme copper-smithing and machinery company, Friday afternoon. Then they fled in a sedan in which the fifth man was waiting.

It was the second payroll robbery of the day, $1,380 having been taken from a young woman cashier four hours earlier after a hand-to-hand battle with other employees at the Peerless silk dyeing company.

At the Oreland plant, which is three and a half miles northwest of Glenside, the work of putting the money in pay envelopes had just been completed and the pay was to have been distributed in about fifteen minutes to 150 employees. The plant builds stumps.

Men at Work Nearby
Samuel Fisher, one of the owners, brought the money from a bank and then left on a business trip to Port Washington. Miss Olive Callaghan, of Germantown, cashier, and an assistant, were at work in a private office, alone. An information office on one side of them was unoccupied and in a draughting office on the other side two or three men were working.

The sedan drew up at 3:45 p. m. and parked 300 feet from the plant. The four men got out, while the fifth turned the car around. They strode through the information office and confronted the girls with automatic pistols and a short-barrel shotgun. Seizing the money and ripping out telephones, they fled.

Report Insult Orders Plane
Athens, Jan. 27 (AP).—Samuel Insull was rumored to have ordered a hydroplane held ready for a flight perhaps to Abyssinia.

At the Aero-Express and Imperial airways seaplane hangers at Phaleron, however, it was said that no craft was waiting to take the former Chicago utilities operator to a new refuge, but the opinion was expressed that he might hop from emergency fields at Por-Rophiti, twenty-two miles from here, or Pefko, twenty miles distant.

Meanwhile, Premier Tsaldaris said Insull would be deported on February 1, if he does not leave voluntarily by January 31, as ordered by the minister of the interior and the state council, but added:

"If Insull requests a prolongation of his sojourn permit on the grounds of health and if the minister of the interior's doctor finds his health dangerous, the Greek government will prolong the permit until his health is satisfactory."

"It would not be fitting for any country forcibly to deport any sick man."

Parental Education
Through the national council of parent education there has been assigned to the department of public instruction the temporary services of two workers, to organize and develop parental education activities.

An effort is being made to develop teacher training activities in connection with emergency education classes. A definite teacher training program is being set up in practically all counties. State teachers' colleges, department of education in the universities and the liberal arts colleges and volunteer services are being utilized.

It now will be possible to extend the work to a limited number of persons in isolated communities by way of correspondence courses. All vocational courses carried on under this program must be with unemployed adults.

House Spikes Furniture Factory In South Backed By Mrs. Roosevelt

Washington, Jan. 27 (AP).—With a direct blow at an employment project in which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has taken a personal interest, the house Friday amended, passed and sent to the senate the $820,790,000 treasury postoffice appropriation bill.

Democrats were responsible for the blow at the project—a furniture factory at Reedsville, West Virginia. On the motion of Representative Ludlow, democrat, Indiana, and with the agreement of Representative Arnold, democrat, Illinois, who had charge of the bill, the house inserted wording to prevent expenditure of postoffice money for equipment manufactured by the Reedsville plant.

It would apply, too, to any other federal factory save that in the District of Columbia.

Built By Federal Funds
The Reedsville establishment is being built with $525,000 allocated from the public works fund. The allocation was made shortly after Mrs. Roosevelt made a tour through the Reedsville region and decided that a furniture factory would give jobs to idle miners.

Mrs. Roosevelt's name was not mentioned in the debate, but the name of the town was. In offering his amendment, Mr. Ludlow said:

"While I honor and respect the proponents of that project for the high altruistic and humanitarian purpose that motivates them, I would be less than human if I did not hear the cries of distress coming from those who will surely suffer if this West Virginia project is carried out."

"Execution of the plan means the destruction of one of the old-established manufacturing institutions of my home city (Indianapolis). Other postoffice furniture factories in Connecticut, New York and other states would also be injuriously affected."

POLAND SIGNS GERMAN PACT

Non-aggression Agreement Expected To End Boundary Dispute.

Berlin, Jan. 27 (AP).—A ten-year pact of friendship and non-aggression, which diplomatic circles called one of the most important treaties in recent European history, was signed here Friday by Poland and Germany.

It was regarded here as a move to eliminate definitely all boundary questions of the two powers and was taken as an indication that the government of Chancellor Hitler feels certain and secure in its position.

France, an ally of Poland, was notified of various steps taken in the preliminary negotiations leading to the conclusion of the agreement. It was announced with almost startling suddenness.

Kellogg Pact Is Model
Modeled after the Kellogg non-aggression pact, which both Germany and Poland signed, the treaty marks a new step in the Hitler regime's foreign policy through direct negotiations instead of cumbersome conferences.

Since Germany has a similar treaty with Russia, it was thought that the Russian foreign office will welcome this rapprochement of the two western neighbors.

Under the terms of the accord questions of minorities and other problems pending between Poland and Germany will be handled through negotiations rather than through the medium of the league of nations, on which Germany turned her back last fall.

Neurath Represents Reich
The Polish legation in Berlin described the conclusion of the agreement as a move to "stabilize the Polish western borders and pacify" (the Polish corridor).

Polish legation attaches commented that "Poland has recognized Germany as a state of equal right."

Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath represented Germany and Joseph Lipski, the Polish minister to Berlin, represented his country during the brief ceremony attending the signing in the foreign office.

Mary Pickford Flees Trailers
Boston, Jan. 27 (AP).—Mary Pickford, famous motion picture actress, was in hiding somewhere on Cape Cod today after complaining to Boston police that a man and woman had been trailing her.

Police revealed today that they had escorted her as far as Buzzards Bay on the Cape Cod canal. A trooper of the Massachusetts state police relieved the Boston officers there, police said, and she crossed the canal for an unknown destination on Cape Cod.

Boston authorities declined to say more than that the actress had complained to them that a man and woman had trailed her all Friday and last night.

GIRL THROWN FROM AUTO IS UNABLE TO AID POLICE
Pottsville, Jan. 27.—Found critically injured along the Pottsville-Minersville state highway Thursday night, Miss Helen Connolly, 18, of New Minersville, was still unconscious in the Warner hospital Friday unable to aid police in the hunt for the men who evidently beat her and then hurled her to the roadway out of a speeding automobile.

The girl has a skull fracture, a broken left arm, injuries to her left leg and foot and her face is a mass of bruises. Louis Buono, chief county detective, said there is little doubt the girl was beaten and then thrown out of an automobile.

Passing motorists found her and rushed her to the hospital here. She had not recovered consciousness sufficiently at any time to offer police any information.

Tagless Dogs May Cost Owners Fine
The fifteenth of January was the time limit set by low for dog licenses to be procured by dog owners, the dog law enforcement division of the Pennsylvania bureau of animal industry, said in a statement issued today.

"The state has put on a campaign for the last month, through newspapers, and in every other way possible, to urge owners to procure licenses for their dogs," the officials explained. "In spite of these efforts, many thousands of dog owners have failed to comply with the law."

Many of those who have not taken the trouble to purchase a license will complain when they are called upon to pay a fine in addition to the price of their license fee. Such persons will have no cause for complaint, for every opportunity has been presented for them to procure their licenses as required under the law.

Bremers Pledge Secrecy In Kidnapper-Dealings

St. Paul, Jan. 27 (AP).—A promise to the kidnappers of Edward G. Bremer, held for $200,000 ransom, that the family would keep secret all information the gang might communicate with them, was pledged Friday by Walter Magee.

Mr. Magee, wealth contractor and friend of the missing president and owner of the Commercial State bank, was named contact man in the first note received from the band within a few hours after Mr. Bremer was seized January 17. The family was not cooperating with authorities, he said.

"We wish to extend every assurance that we will not communicate with the authorities," promised Mr. Magee. "We are interested in obtaining Mr. Bremer's release. That is all."

"We are not cooperating with the authorities because we wish to leave open every possible chance for the holders of Mr. Bremer to communicate."

The family, meanwhile, awaited word from the gang as to when and how to pay the ransom for freeing the son of Adolph Bremer principal owner of the Jacob Schmidt Brewing company.

The elder Bremer, some days ago, had pleaded with authorities to remain on the sidelines until his son was released, feeling any police activity might endanger the son's life.

City police have abided by that request. Federal authorities have worked on the few meager clues, preliminary instructions from the gang, the banker's blood-stained automobile, and at least four notes which have passed through the postoffice of the twin cities.

Whether these missives were the work of cranks has not been ascertained. Sketchy accounts of the actual seizure, purported to have been seen by a milk wagon driver and two women witnesses, so far have not aided authorities toward a solution.

Friday was the tenth day the younger Bremer has been missing. He was abducted between 8:20 a. m. and 8:30 a. m., January 17, after leaving his eight-year-old daughter, Betty, at the exclusive Summit Girls' school.

BLOND GODDESS

By Herbert Jensen

SYNOPSIS: Frank Grahame is on his way to the Yucatan coast to search for his aviator friend, Bill Langton, who crashed there months before. He has refused by Janice Kent, the movie star, and he has turned down an offer from Myberg, the producer, to lead a party to make a picture in the Mexican jungle with Janice as star. Meanwhile Ortega, in a little Mexican town on the jungle's edge, has been testing his marksmanship by shooting a little dog in the main street.

Chapter 17 ON THE BOAT

Sometime later a little mestiza girl skipped around the corner and stopped short at the sight of the huddle that had been the dog. "Chiquito!" she cried. Her child-like treble broke. Tears streamed from her eyes as she fell beside the little body. Dust, dog and all she gathered into her arms and knelt there swaying and weeping.

Grahame, strolling around the corner toward the wharves, caught sight of the small tragedy before him. He threw away his cigaret and lifted the child to her feet. She clung to the dog.

"What is it?" he exclaimed in Spanish, brushing the dust from the little girl's dress.

"There was a fish flood of tears. 'My little dog! My child. My angel. Dead!'

Grahame glanced swiftly at the bullet wounds and growled, "Who did it?"

"I don't know," sobs wrenched her breast.

"There, there," he said soothingly. "We will take your child home and bury him fittingly. Here . . . He pressed a peso into her hand. 'This will buy a wreath and a prayer from the padre.' He lifted the child, who still clutched her pet in her arms, to his own, and strode toward the house she pointed out.

"He was so young," quavered the girl.

The town was stirring from its daily siesta, as, a little later, Grahame continued his interrupted walk to the wharves. He identified the launch that was to take him down the coast, by his luggage piled upon the deck.

Two men were indolently coiling ropes and a figure sat on the deck house surrounded with oily rags and cleaning a revolver.

"Senior Ortega?" asked Grahame. "At your service," replied the man brushing the rags aside.

The American stared at the gun. "When do we leave?"

"Whenever you wish. Immediately." Grahame leaped down to the launch's deck. He looked again at the revolver. "Was it you that I heard shooting in the town a little while ago?"

Don Raoul hesitated. "No," he replied. "I have been here for hours."

The two men paused with their rope-coiling and glanced at Ortega. One of them grinned and turned his head. Don Raoul spoke to them sharply and one went below while the other loosed the lines that held the craft to the wharf. From below came the sound of the engine coughing into activity.

An hour later the Progreso light-house was a hazy point astern and the Yucatan coast a low line to the starboard as they pushed against the gulf current.

Grahame and Ortega lounged in the cockpit, smoking and idly watching a school of porpoise roll through the waves ahead.

Before they had gotten under way, Frank, struck by the coincidence of names, had asked this Don Raoul Ortega if he were the one who had been in the United States a few weeks before in Hollywood.

Also he had anticipated the answer. Ortega is a common name in Mexico; so again is Raoul—which is the Latin for Ralph. Nor was he disappointed.

The man had shrugged. "A relative, perhaps. Half the gentlemen in Mexico, I think, are related. Why do you ask? Some friend of yours?"

Frank had filled his pipe and lighted it. "No friend of mine," he answered. "But I would like to ask him some questions . . . that he might find difficult to answer."

Ortega had given him a flickering glance. He smiled a curiously reticent smile.

"What did you say your name was, senior?"

"I didn't say," answered Grahame abruptly.

He did not like Don Raoul. There was something sinister—evasive—about the big Mexican.

But it was fortunate that he was able to get this transportation around Cape Catoche, and down the coast of Quintana Roo.

The Progreso port officer had told him that morning that the light-house tender would not be making that trip for weeks yet, but that Don Raoul, a hacendado whose plantation was some distance along the coast, was leaving that day. Agreeably he found a man to take Grahame's baggage down to the wharf and make arrangements for the voyage.

Ortega did not look like a plantation owner. Haciendados kept up the traditions of the indolent gentlemen land-owners—men whose air was that of being aloof from the peonage—and whose hands were soft.

Since their discussion of his name Ortega had showed almost an impatient curiosity regarding his passenger. Moreover he had disregarded Frank's avoidance of his inquiries. Aside from the obvious bad taste of what Grahame considered Ortega's impertinence the man seemed to be insensible to the fact that on the outposts of any country a man's motives were his own.

There is an unwritten law that a man's identity shall not be inquired into, nor confidences sought. Inquisitiveness sometimes had a penalty that carried a sting with it.

But still he persisted. "But you cannot want to be left on a little island off the coast. That island scarcely supports a few fishing families."

Grahame remained silent. "The jungle, behind the coast at that spot is uninhabited and dangerous."

Grahame tossed his cigaret over-side. "Yet, Don Raoul, you have a plantation thereabouts," answered Grahame.

"Yes," said Ortega. He watched the American closely. "I am familiar there. It is not dangerous for me."

The other shrugged his shoulders. "Then why should it be dangerous for me? I can take care of myself."

"Ah . . ." The Mexican looked expressionlessly at Grahame. "It is possible, then, that you seek a dangerous place, for reasons of your own, where someone could not follow?"

"Perhaps," replied Grahame indifferently.

They ate just before dusk, the inevitable beans and rice, with slabs of a delicious mackerel-like fish one of the crew had hauled aboard from a troll-line. Grahame spread his blanket in the bow of the launch and rolled himself within it. Ortega seated himself in the cockpit with the two that composed the crew and the American could hear their voices above the chug of the engine, talking between themselves.

Drowsily he wondered why they had set out on running lights but decided that the traffic in that part of the coast warranted no such protection.

He wondered about that point again the next day. They had been sailing within a quarter of a mile of the coast when Ortega pointed astern. The crew followed his gesture with their gaze and Grahame noticed a smudge of smoke over the distant horizon.

Immediately the helm was put over and the launch headed for the beach and a point where the surf diminished. There were no orders given, but one of the men went below and the exhaust of the engine immediately picked up.

As they approached the shore Grahame noted that the beach swept back into the opening of a lagoon. Within a few minutes the launch passed through the narrow straits and onto the placid waters of a lagoon that stretched back paralleling the beach. Mangroves hid the launch from the sea. They stopped the engine and threw over the anchor.

Grahame was curious. The three men seemed unperturbed and they watched the smoke come closer until the steamer unquestionably became outlined as an old-time gunboat plying along at no great speed two miles off shore. Grahame believed he could make out the flag it flew as Mexican. He asked Ortega about this.

"A gunboat surely," he replied. "Mexican."

"And we avoided it?"

Ortega shrugged. One could not tell, he explained, what the military might do. They had so little to do that they might stop them and search the launch. It was often done. It was a bother and a great annoyance, so it was better to avoid the meeting.

"But even if they searched you, what could they find?"

Juan, the younger member of the crew laughed, and Ortega's face wrinkled with a sort of subdued mirth.

"They would find occupation, perhaps."

Grahame learns an important fact, Monday.

ARENDTSTVILLE BEATS BIGLER

Boys And Girls Win Two Contests At Arendtsville, Friday Night.

Arendtsville got the jump on Biglerville high in the first of their annual basketball series by taking both ends of a double-header played Friday evening at Arendtsville, the boys winning, 22-18, and the girls, 32-17.

After holding a 7-6 lead at half time, the Arendtsville boys forged out into a ten-point lead and with approximately four minutes to go, led 21-11. Biglerville rallied to tally seven points in the final minutes of the game, but Coach Taylor's lads successfully withstood the rally.

The undefeated Arendtsville girls won their tenth straight in easy fashion by handing the Biglerville maids their initial loss of the season, 32-17. The victors led throughout the entire game, at half time the score being 17-13. The Biglerville team had previously won nine in a row.

Tuesday evening the Arendtsville teams play at Littlestown. On the same evening the Biglerville boys meet Fairfield at Biglerville.

PHILADELPHIANS CONFIDENT OF DEFEATING WINGS HERE ON MONDAY EVENING.

The Fleet-Wings are in for a severe drubbing Monday night if the predictions of the manager of the Philadelphia Passon basketball team come true.

Confident that they will be able to defeat the Wings with their famous "weave passing" attack, the Philadelphia city champs will bring their strongest lineup for the game.

The Passons are determined to atone for their 52-37 setback received here early in the season and expect to do it in easy style.

"Our first defeat of the year was handed to us by the Fleet-Wings and we are not forgetting it," a member of the visitors is reported to have said. "We were off in our first game here and lost by a big margin. The Fleet-Wings have a nice ball club, but aren't in our class and we'll prove it this time."

Smart Passers
The Passons are the amateur Philadelphia city champions and at present are in second place in the Quaker City league. The Philadelphia's greatest strength lies in their baffling weave pass, a deadly offensive weapon which opposing teams find difficult to break up.

The Wings are preparing themselves for a stiff struggle and will have their entire roster of players on hand for the game.

York Springs will make an effort to halt the undefeated Sweetland dribblers when the teams clash in the preliminary county league game at 7:30 o'clock.

Brazil May Get American Football

Rio De Janeiro (AP)—A move to introduce American football in Brazil, now a hundred percent soccer country, has been launched by the afternoon newspaper "A Noite," which sees in Uncle Sam's pigskin sport "a perfect alliance of force and intelligence."

Brazilian universities don't go in much for athletics, and "A Noite," in offering to help install American football in colleges, opined that the game would stimulate "athletic necessities recognized as vital in the formation and development of peoples."

Free Lance Fighter Pines In Prison; Tells Story

By CLEVELAND WILLIAMS
McNeill Island federal prison, Wash. (AP)—He's been a general in China, a commander in Russia and France, a decorated hero and a fighting man in other countries, but today Bert Hall—number 10,661 in prison—is just a business man anxious to get back to his business of battleplanes and bombs.

"General" Hall, world famous soldier of fortune, in his first interview since he was sentenced in China to serve 2½ years in the federal penitentiary, said he's here because there isn't enough honesty in the fighting business.

Explains His Arrest
Fighting men and diplomats of many countries were startled to learn that "General Chan" Hall was imprisoned on a charge of engaging in illegal importation of arms into China. Nobody knew exactly why. Today Hall told why he's here, what he's going to do when released and described the family and books to which he's anxious to give his attention.

"It's all in the game," he said. "I can take it on the chin and still smile. The circumstances surrounding my incarceration were that I had a contract with the North China clique of generals and they did not pay up. They needed arms and ammunition and came to me to purchase them for them. I was trusted by the Chinese general with a sum of money to purchase arms and retained this money for my own personal use.

His Collection Plan Worked
"My claim for $34,000 due me on a contract with the governor of Hopei province, had been placed in the hands of the American consul-general at Tientsin. He finally informed me that he could render me no assistance. Consequently I applied my own methods of collecting."

"If the American authorities feel that is a crime under the circumstances, all right. But now that I am here I regret very much that I was not able to collect the entire sum due me, as Chinese generals obtain their money from the poor people by force. I do not feel as though taking money owed to you is a crime, even though you use trickery to obtain it. There is still a balance of $24,000 which I may be able to collect in the future."

"Fighting is a business, you know, and should carry the obligation of paying honest debts, like any other business. Whenever I can make more money at some other business, I'll quit the one I have known best so far."

He should know—one of the charter members of the Lafayette Escadrille, a daring aviator in the Chinese wars, with a record of having fought or organized armies in France, Greece, Turkey, Bulgaria, Russia, China and Manchuria. His score includes nine German planes downed during the World war and the glittering decorations of France, England, Russia and the Balkan countries.

"My work in China recently," said the sturdy, blue-clad Hall, sitting in the warden's office, "was part flying and part organization work. And so here I am, with a good war started in China right now. It's not so bad, though. Warden Finch R. Archer is a fine man. I have been doing clerical work in the captain's office, and there is plenty of time to tinker with engines—I like that."

Has Wife And Family
He started out across the blue waters that surrounded McNeill Island to where the gray prison boat chugged at the dock.

"I have a wife and three fine sons at a military academy in Los Angeles. I would much rather be with them."

"General Chan" reached into a pocket and found a snapshot. "I sent them each a real gun," he smiled, "and told them whatever they did not to point them at each other. Look at what they sent me!"

The photo showed three handsome youngsters in wild-west costume, pointing the self-same revolvers at each other.

"Too Much Exaggeration"
"A fighting man, an organizer, learns a lot about what is civilized and what isn't. There is a lot of tearing down and building up to be done in this world before it will become civilized."

Hall doesn't care for reports that a soldier of fortune is necessarily a wild-eyed adventurer.

"There's too much exaggeration about my business," he said.

"So when I finish here I'll look out for my family, attend to the books and go back to work."

His place of business, he explained, will be wherever there is a "satisfactory" war going on.

HAPPY LANDINGS

AGAINST the black night a ten-mile finger of light sweeps the clouds in tireless circles. Out of the darkness you hear the drone of an invisible plane. The motors roar louder. They fade to a faint hum . . . then silence. The night mail has passed.

Far above in the cockpit a muffled figure peers ahead, picking up beacon after beacon. Over treacherous mountains and forests and cliff-like cities they lead him safely to a "happy landing."

The advertisements in this paper are beacons erected by manufacturers and merchants to aid you in making "happy landings" with your buying dollars. Through the confusion and obscurity of unbranded, unsponsored merchandise they mark a straight path to known values, honest service and safe investment.

To be at all successful, the manufacturer and the merchant must advertise. To remain unknown is to be passed by.

Peculiarly—the reflex of advertising is that it compels truth. The advertiser who deliberately misrepresents is like the aviator who "bales out" without a parachute.

Thrill! Thrill! Thrill! Multiply that word for forty minutes and the answer will give some idea of the basket ball game played Saturday night in the college gymnasium, when the Gettysburg high school basketball team took the Harrisburg Tech team by the horns and threw it for a 23-22 loss.

G. Bream was the outstanding star of the game, both teams included. He brought to Gettysburg fourteen of the 23 points made.

Marsby Little, Gettysburg's captain, and Johnnie Miller, guards, were largely responsible for the Tech defeat. Both Moser and Tennant played exceptional games.

Miss Krout Weds Fellow Employee: Miss Marie V. Krout, member of the office force at the local furniture factory, was married at 1 o'clock on Thursday afternoon to Curtis Klinefelter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Klinefelter, also an employee of the plant.

The ceremony was performed at the parsonage of St. James' Lutheran church here, the Rev. Earl
J. Bowman performing the service.
The couple were attended only by Mr. and Mrs. John Klinefelter, the former a brother of the bridegroom.

Members of the office force at the furniture factory turned out in force to celebrate the occasion, and surrounded the pair as they emerged from the parsonage following the ceremony.

Married in Westminster: Paul
B. Ramer, of the Gettysburg garage, and Miss Juanita Ross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H.
Ross, until recently of Gettysburg, slipped off to Westminster, Maryland, Thursday and were married at 3:30 o'clock by the Rev. Father Egan, of the Catholic church.

News of their marriage was received with surprise by their many friends, no previous announcement of their intentions having been given.

The couple will reside temporarily with the bridegroom's uncle,
Jacob Eckenrode, Chambersburg
street.

Read The Bible With Us Daily

Whoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God: and every one that loveth him that begat loveth him also that is begotten of him.

By this we know that we love
the children of God, when we love God, and keep his commandments.

For this is the love of God, that we keep his commandments: and his commandments were not grievous.

For whatsoever is born of God
overcometh the world: and this is the victory that overcometh
the world, even our faith.

Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jesus is the Son of God?

This is he that came by water and blood, even Jesus Christ: not by water only, but by water and blood. And it is the Spirit that beareth witness, because the Spirit is truth.

For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost, and these three are one.

And there are three that bear witness in earth, the spirit, and the water, and the blood: and these three agree in one.—1 John 5:1-8.

Science Changes Light To Solid; Atom Is Taken Apart

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

(Associated Press Science Editor)

New York (AP)—The year 1933 brought science a step closer to its great riddle, the origin of life, the hidden process in which matter changes from inanimate into living substance.

The main step was photography showing radium rays, a form of light, changing into solid matter.
Some foremost scientists said these pictures disclosed for the first time
the miracle of the creation of matter, showing how the radiation of sun and stars may change back into concrete substance.

Lord Rutherford, in whose Cambridge laboratory some of the photos were taken, called them
"creation." Dr. Robert A. Millikan, the California physicist, in whose Pasadena laboratory similar pictures were snapped, said they were too few to be conclusive.

But there was no disagreement that the photos opened a new insight into the nature of the minute particles which compose both inanimate and living things. The "creation" pictures were only part of similar significant discoveries.

Atom Taken Apart

Others established that the atom, only a few years ago considered the ultimate particle of matter, comprises at least six smaller units.
These little particles have been weighed. The laws under which they act are coming to light, laws which more than one scientist has hinted seem to extend beyond purely physical things.

For tracing life to its origin these particles appear to be new and promising tools. There is reason to believe they are the original jig-saw pieces, and that they can be laid out in two ways, one to form inanimate,
the other living substance.

"Heredity-Carriers" Studied

How this may be is suggested by action of the smallest living units
actually seen under microscopes.
These are chromosomes, the carriers of heredity, living threads inhabiting living cells.

But these chromosomes are not always visible to microscopes. They appear when the cell prepares to divide. That is, to grow. Before this the cell center is a knot of clear protoplasm, inside a baglike membrane.

Within this knot granules, or tiny specks, begin to appear. They form themselves into long threads, the chromosomes. The threads writhe and twist. The baglike membrane

2 tablespoons fat, melted.

Mix ingredients and beat one minute. Heat griddle or frying pan and grease well with lard or any unsalted grease. When griddle smokes, it is ready to use. Drop tablespoons of batter onto hot pan and cook until bubbles rise on the top, and rims of cakes become light brown. Using spatula or pancake turner and fork, carefully turn and cook other sides. Serve at once.

Sausage Cakes

One pound sausage; 2 tablespoons flour.

Shape sausage meat into cakes
1/2 inch thick and 1 1/2 inches in diameter. Sprinkle with flour. Heat frying pan and add and quickly brown cakes. No fat is added, as there is sufficient fat in the sausage. Cover with lid, lower fire and cook sausages 15 minutes. Turn several times to allow even browning.

Escalloped Corn, Serving 6 3 cups corn; 2/3 cup cracker crumbs; 1 egg; 1 cup milk; 1/4 teaspoon salt; 1/4 teaspoon paprika; 1 teaspoon sugar; 4 tablespoons butter, melted.

Mix ingredients and pour into buttered baking dish. Bake 25 minutes in moderate oven. Serve in dish in which baked.

This dish can be served as a meat substitute if desired.

fades. The knot of protoplasm enlarges. Then the chromosomes arrange themselves across the center of the cell like an equator.

Move Over, Divide Again

Next they tear themselves in two longitudinally, taking two complete sets of chromosomes. Each set moves to the opposite side of the cell, which divides into two.

The chromosomes then gather in the centers of their new cells. There they disappear from view, to be replaced by another limpid knot of protoplasm, like the one from which they emerged. Whence they come or where they go is beyond vision of microscopes.

It is here, in learning the origin of chromosomes and of the much smaller things which form them,
that the discoveries of new particles
and of creation of matter may be helpful. For these particles are so vastly smaller than chromosomes that they can account for all the complexities of life known on earth.

These particles are the electron,
a negative bit of electricity; the positron, a positive charge equal in mass to the electron; the proton,
a positive charge about 1800 times
the electron mass; the neutron, with no electrical charge; the deuton, seemingly a combination of proton and neutron; and the alpha particle, considered as a combination of four neutrons and two protons.

All appear from bombardment of atomic nuclei by extra powerful rays either of light or of streams of particles. All appear as debris of broken nuclei. In this debris also the photographs show pairs of particles, electrons and positrons, which may not be debris. The pairs are believed to be converted pho-tons or light rays, changed into matter by passing close to the nucleus.

A Checked Outfit For Early Spring

It is time to begin thinking of your early spring outfits and here is a suggestion. This smart suit is in one of the new checks, the colors
being yellow and gray. The blouse and scarf are of tomato red, and the skirt is that of yellow crepe.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LONG LIFE—AND HAPPINESS

EVERYONE who is happy wishes to live a long life. Not for himself alone, but because of the thrill of happiness that always accrues from having rendered a service in the world and having brought happiness to others—less fortunate than oneself, perhaps.

Any student of the human body will tell us that the first thing of importance in a healthy body is a natural and healthy digestion, with the body kept free daily of all poisons. The same thing applies to the mind, which directs the life of the body.

Thoughts nourish the mind. Inspiring reading, beautifully expressed poetry, a thrilling piece of news—these flood the mind with a glow of light which affects the entire physical make-up. Fear, bad temper, worry have a tremendous bearing upon the healthy working of the glands and secretions of the body. They put its best parts out of gear.

It is just as easy to poison the mind with unhappy thoughts as it is to poison the body by a wrong combination of foods.

Full efficiency for the body can only be attained by having a clean body and a clean mind.

Our attitude toward life is everything. We cannot poison this mind of ours with critical and mean thoughts and then expect that we are going to be happy in heart.

I am often reminded of that man in Texas who lived to be over 100 years old and when people asked him the secret, replied that he owned his long life to the fact that he had never worried about the weather!

I never knew a happy selfish person. The happiest people I have ever known have been those who continually sought out new ways to make other people happy. There can be nothing so healthy to a normal mind as that of daily service rendered to the world at large.

One of the most inspiring of lives was that of Thomas Edison. What a tremendously busy life! You never get a pessimistic statement from that man. He always had a sense of humor, and was forever looking ahead and discovering something new, or inventing something of benefit to mankind.

This time and age is sometime going to fittingly honor Henry Ford.
I never talked with a man of freer mind, or with a man calmer in disposition and a healthier viewpoint upon life. At 70 he moves about like a boy and cheers everybody with whom he comes in contact.

A long life—and happiness! Well, each of us has been given the key to it. Our success lies in fitting it to the right lock.

Children are natural mimics.

But they imitate the bad, as well as the good.

How many mothers, in dressing their children, put pins in their mouth?

To the impressionable child, this indicates a proper procedure.

So the child puts pins in his or her mouth—and too often swallows them.

Hundreds of safety pins, most of them open, have been surgically
removed from the air and food passages of children.

Coins are other articles that have no business in the mouth.

And yet many mothers take a coin out of their purse and put it in their mouth while they close the purse.

This is a bad example for the observant child.

Small toys or large toys with a loose small part should not be given to children.

Hundreds of children have died
from getting peanut kernels down
the wrong way and into the bronchi.

Nuts or nut candy should not be given to children too young to have big, grinding back teeth.

Bones, watermelon seeds, orange seeds, cherry pits, prune stones, egg shells, nut shells and other articles have been removed from the air and food passages of children by the thousands.

In adults, rapid eating has caused many bones to become lodged in the esophagus.

Carelessness on the part of the cook and the diner is responsible.

Hasty, gluttonous eating is a habit usually acquired in childhood.

Children should be taught by example to eat slowly for their health's sake, as well as for good manners.

However, if someone does swallow a foreign body:
Don't get excited.
Don't pound the patient on the back.

Don't dig into his month or throat with your fingers, or you are almost certain to push the foreign body deeper.

Don't give cathartics or bulky food in the belief that the foreign body has been swallowed.

Call the family physician.

The development of broncho-scopy and esophagoscopy has saved
many lives.

Hospitals throughout the country are now equipped with the bronchoscope, perfected by Dr.
Chevalier Jackson, of Philadelphia, and thousands of foreign bodies
have been removed successfully from children and adults.

DO YOU KNOW?

80 per cent of the 25,000 annual deaths from appendicitis in the United States and Canada are caused by delay and the use of cathartics.

and intended for use as a warehouse, but in 1822 it was made over into a tavern. This was known as Eagle house and later as the Golden Eagle. Then it became the Great Eastern hotel, and fastened itself
forever in the minds of seafaring men.

In 1907 this hotel closed its doors and its owners remodeled it for other purposes. Stripping its walls they were astonished to find that its frame and rafters were solid mahogany. Well, they replaced
these with steel and other material, and finished off the building in brown cement.

The mahogany? Oh, that was doled out to exclusive uptown hotels and clubs to be made into bars.
When prohibition came many of those bars were salted away for a 14-year repose, but now that repeal has resurrected old customs, those bits of mahogany, under the blue eagle, are brighter than they ever were in the days when they served the Eagle of Gold.

During her stock days Helen Mack often went hungry and sent money to her people—not that they wanted it, but because she wanted them to think she had a big salary.

As I was on my way to town a happy man was I.
I'd had my fill of breakfast and my feet were warm and dry.
And all my thoughts were lively ones until I chanced to see A cold and pale-faced woman with her sad-eyes turned on me.

I'd kissed my wife and children and their lips were warm and sweet,
And all the world seemed fair to me as I walked down the street;
But there upon the corner where
the crowds were hurrying by,
I stood a shivering beggar woman
and she had to catch my eye.

Her cheeks were thin and suffering, her lips with cold were blue,
Her eyes were so pitiful they seemed to look me through.
And as I turned to go to her I'll swear I heard them say:
"What would you think if one of yours were half as cold today?"

She gave to me a grateful smile as
on my way I went,
But all that day I wondered how
are lives so sadly bent.
What's wrong in such a world as ours that women folk should be
So cold and friendless and so sad
and pitiful to see?

BETWEEN THREE FIRES

Boston (AP)—It's a good thing
Max Bishop knows how to play
plenty of second base or he probably would be in for much criticism from the three bosses of the Boston Red Sox this year. The big three—Owner Tom Yawkey, General Manager Eddie Collins and Manager Bucky Harris—all were second basemen.

DAY-OLD CHICKS

Zech's Strain of Leghorns

(Hanson and Cochran blood predominating) are good size and layers of large white eggs, are range grown and kept. We blood tested these birds two or more times for B. W. D. and marketed the reaction using the antigen test as formulated by Drs. Dorset and Bovens of the U. S. Bureau of animal industry. All eggs used are produced on our two farms. Our incubator room and hatching equipment are of the finest. We invite you to visit us and see our remodeled hatching room where cleanliness is a built-in passion. The separate hatchery is being fumigated after each hatch, using the formula as worked out by the Kansas Agricultural College.

MR. CHICK BUYER, DO YOU KNOW THAT THE NATIONAL
COMMERCIAL AND BREEDERS
HATCHERY CODE WAS SIGNED
BY THE PRESIDENT AND IS IN EFFECT SINCE JAN. 3?

—That it affects all hatching over 500 eggs annually.

—That the custom hatching fee is 24c. per egg, and that no eggs under 23 Oz. per doz. average may be used.

That auction chicks must sell
above the hatchery prices.
—That these and other regulations will result in a greatly reduced crop of poultry and should very favorably
affect the price of poultry and eggs.
Now would it not be a good idea to visit us and see our stock and equipment and learn our methods? We are located on Route 516, South of Spring

Crop Control And Marketing
Agreements Featured 1933

By CARL C. CRANMER
Washington (AP)—The twin problems of agriculture, debt and commodity surpluses, bore the brunt of government action in 1933.

To solve the surplus problem, the agricultural adjustment act was passed, providing for crop control
and marketing agreements.
To meet the debt situation, the farm credit administration was set up, and lending agencies that had been scattered under the old federal farm board, treasury, reconstruction finance corporation and department of agriculture, were put under one head and broadened.

Four Types of Credit
Department of agriculture figures show that in 1932 farm mortgage indebtedness was about $8,500,000.
For the year ending last March approximately 38.8 farms out of every 1,000 were involved in transfers for debt.

Four types of credit are provided under the new set-up by the federal land banks, production credit corporations, intermediate credit banks and banks for cooperatives in each of 12 regions.

By issuing $2,000,000,000 in bonds,
with interest guaranteed, the federal land banks were permitted to assume farm mortgages held by private agencies in order to stop foreclosures.

Nearly half a million farmers applied for $1,700,000,000 in mortgage loans between May 12 and December 1.

Geared to grant loans which amounted to only $27,569,000 in 1932, the land banks stepped up their lending from $3,985,000 in July to $38,532,000 in November, or a total of more than $110,000,000
in the five months.

Big Response in Borrowing
By the end of November mortgage loans were being made at a rate of $3,000,000 a day and outstanding loans totaled $1,206,000,000 compared with $1,118,000,000 on June 30. Other types of loans outstanding, including those to cooperatives and production credit assets. But the growers of fluecured tobacco received $75,000,000

more this year than last, it is estimated, when they agreed to cut acreage next year up to 30 per cent, and manufacturers agreed to pay a minimum price of 17 cents a pound. Benefits will total about $17,000,000.

Thirteen milkshed marketing agreements were negotiated, with 12 others nearing completion. These agreements are estimated to increase the returns to producers of Class 1 milk by $30,000,000 annually.

Several other marketing agreements including fruits and rice
were put into effect.

Washington Highlights

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington — However commanding the administration's advantage may have appeared as Congress' initial opening flurry past—buckled down to business ahead lay something that might prove a snarl.

Steering committees at both ends of the capitol had placed just behind the special liquor tax measures the plan to grant the White House authority to work out new export markets for farm stuffs by "bloss-trade" negotiations as to tariffs and related matters with other countries.

That was done on the heels of Mr. Roosevelt's pre-session conference with party congressional leaders, indicating that he rated the framing of new bi-lateral trade agreements as the urgent next step in his agricultural program.

Governors Island, New York, welcomed the first bride of a senior army officer in many years. She is none other than Pauline Frederick, the actress. Miss Frederick and Col. Joseph A. Marmion, commander of the 16th U. S. Infantry, were married recently at Scarsdale, N. Y. It was the fifth marriage for the actress and Colonel Marmion's first. Stokowski Proposal To Play Red Anthem Rouses Legion

Philadelphia, Jan. 27.—Arise, ye prisoners of starvation! Arise, ye wretched of the earth! For Justice thunders condemnation, A better world's in birth! Arise, ye slaves, no more in thrall, The earth shall rise on new foundations, We have been naught—we shall be all.

Yes, that's the first verse of the Internationale, the latest bone of contention between the American Legion and the liberal bloc which looks upon Russia with a tolerant eye.

The Legion's blast against Leopold Stokowski and his announced intention of playing the communist hymn at a concert for youth sent directors of the orchestra scurrying to find copies of the song.

The Public Library could not locate a copy, nor could several other libraries in the city. The Rev. Robert J. McFetridge, chaplain of the county American Legion, who viewed Mr. Stokowski's plan with alarm, admitted he didn't have a copy, either. Finally, a copy was obtained through the Labor Institute, which had quite a time itself getting it.

Playing of the Internationale was warmly defended by Miss Gertrude Ely, former president of the Pennsylvania League of Women Voters, and by several other orchestra fans, some of whom hid behind the veil of anonymity.

"Why not play it as well as the 'Marseillaise' or 'God Save the King'?" demanded Miss Ely. "No body accuses us of treason for that. Now we have recognized the Russian."

"The officers wouldn't raid that place," she said, "so I did it. And they can expect me back if I ever find my son there again."

"Why," asserted Mrs. Gower, "those fellows running that place were so bold that they visited CWA projects, told the workers where they were running a game and invited them to come in."

Blaze Sweeps Lancaster Plant

Lancaster, Jan. 27.—Twenty-five employees fled to safety when fire swept through the David Miller umbrella handle plant in the southern section of the city late Friday afternoon. A general alarm called all available fire-fighting apparatus and firemen into action. One fireman was injured. Damage is estimated at $15,000.

Fire started in the basement, where three men were at work. The men escaped to the first floor and shouted a warning as a muffled explosion rocked the building. The flames spread rapidly when the fire reached the highly inflammable materials used in the manufacture of the umbrella handles.

Dense, sickening smoke hung over the neighborhood and for a short time frame houses in the vicinity of the plant were endangered. The fire was confined to the walls of the two-story brick building in which it started. The interior of the plant, equipment and stock were destroyed.

Tucker Tammany, a local fireman, suffered a severely lacerated hand when struck by a piece of broken glass.

Destroys Plants To Protect Pines

To protect the white pine timber stands of the state from their deadliest enemy the blister rust, a fungous disease, 2,665,000 wild and cultivated currant and gooseberry plants were destroyed in Pennsylvania last year, George H. Wirt, director of the bureau of forest protection, announced today.

More than 43,700 acres of white pine timber were protected. This was the most extensive blister rust control project ever undertaken in Pennsylvania during a single year. The gooseberry and currant plants are destroyed because they transmit the disease to the pines, Wirt said.

About 85 per cent of all the work accomplished was done under the emergency conservation work program by members of the civilian conservation corps. The balance was carried on under federal allotments made from NIRA funds, from state allotments, and through the co-operation of private woodland owners.

ment apparently will have little effect on the senate and its traditionally leisurely way of doing business.

The senate was in session probably less than two hours during the week in which congress assembled. After a short session on Thursday, lasting one hour and 16 minutes, senators closed up shop for the week.

The house drove on through with the liquor tax bill, completing consideration of it before adjourning.

The White House set Manuel Quezon and his associates of the new Philippine independence commission on a tour. They were asked to draft a bill in a matter of days setting out their ideas of the subject in opposition to the Hare-Cutting-Hawkes plan they oppose and which it took years of congressional travail to produce.

Wrecks "Joint" To Rescue Son

Cartersville, Ill., Jan. 27 (AP)—This county, once heralded as "bloody Williamson" because of its mine, Ku Klux Klan, gang and political wars, but peaceful of late, was agog Thursday over a modern Carrie Nation.

A quiet church worker, Mrs. Charles Gower, told how she raided single-handed an alleged gambling place across the street from the postoffice here, and, after demolishing almost everything in sight, took her married son home with her.

"The officers wouldn't raid that place," she said, "so I did it. And they can expect me back if I ever find my son there again."

"Why," asserted Mrs. Gower, "those fellows running that place were so bold that they visited CWA projects, told the workers where they were running a game and invited them to come in."

TWO KILLED WHEN BUS, AUTO CRASH

Greensburg, Pa., Jan. 27 (AP)—Two persons were killed and half a dozen injured in a collision of an automobile and a bus near Greensburg Thursday night.

The dead are Robert Hamburg, son of the late John S. Hamburg, former Westmoreland county poor director, and his companion, a young woman, whose name was not learned immediately. They were riding in the automobile.

The bodies were taken to Latrobe and several passengers on the bus were treated at a Latrobe hospital.

CAPITAL Ins and Outs

By Herbert Plummer

Washington—Another veteran in senate service is out to make a political comeback by seeking a seat in the house of representatives. This time it is Tom Heflin of Alabama.

Heflin has announced he will be a candidate for the house in the fifth Alabama congressional district in the primary next May. He will oppose Miles Allgood, elected from that district for six consecutive terms.

The former Alabama senator is beginning anew in his quest for a seat in the house. He served in nine congresses as a representative of the fifth district, then resigned to enter the senate.

He served in the senate until defeated in 1930 by John H. Bankhead following a bitter struggle in which he was read out of the democratic party in his state and forced to run as an independent.

Heflin contested the election unsuccessfully before the senate and then retired from politics.

Ex-Senators In House

Attempting a return to something like their former station in national politics by way of the house is becoming more and more popular among ex-senators.

There are two such men now sitting in the house.

One is James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York, who served two terms in the senate before he was defeated in 1926 by Senator Wagner.

Wadsworth's position in the republican party at the present time is one of prominence. Although disclaiming any desire for political advancement at the time he entered the house, the fact remains that his name figures largely in all discussions of who the republican presidential candidate will be in 1936.

Wadsworth and Ogden Mills, also a New Yorker, are looked upon at present as the outstanding candidates for the republican nomination.

Johnson Came Back

The other old senate wheelhorse now in the house is the fiery, picturesque Magnus Johnson of Minnesota. He was elected a member at large last November with 388,616 votes, the most polled by any of the nine successful candidates in the 'leid.

Rumors have been current for a long time that former Senator Jim Watson of Indiana, defeated in the Roosevelt landslide last year, has his eye on a seat in the house in an attempted comeback. There have been no indications thus far, however, that they are more than rumors.

Washington — While house leaders have been free in their predictions that the present session of congress will be a short one, senate bosses have been rather chary in their views.

Princeton Adds Boxing To Sports

Princeton, N. J. (AP)—Climaxing a six-year campaign on the part of the students, the faculty committee on athletics at Princeton university finally has approved boxing as an official sport.

The team will be coached by Spider Kelly, who has been in charge of the unofficial teams, and Winthrop Rutherford, Nassau graduate and assistant rowing coach. The first match will be held February 16 with the Newark Athletic club.

WILL ASK REFORM OF GERMAN CONSTITUTION

Berlin, Jan. 26 (AP)—Reform of the German constitution will be asked of the Reichstag in a special meeting January 30, the anniversary of Adolf Hitler's elevation to the chancellorsip.

The proposed reform, which will require an enabling act to be passed by the German parliament will tend toward abolition of states in Germany.

is the date set by Rainey. 'Byrns believes it can be done by April 1.

Thus far only one senate leader has commented on the subject publicly. Senator Joe Robinson has expressed the hope that adjournment can be effected in the spring.

Robinson's estimate, veteran of the senate as he is, sounds more like a prayer than a prophecy.

No one familiar with the senate dares predict what it will do. It could, of course, get away early. But will it?

Battles Brewing

Despite the fact that one-third of the senators will be up for reelection next year and therefore anxious to get home and start campaigning, there are other considerations to keep in mind.

Those from the farm states, for example, will have a lot to get off their chest about the administration's agricultural program. Discontent in the farm area, while apparently not as acute as it was earlier, is still a factor.

Secretary Ickes and the Public Works administration have aroused the ire of others. There are those who feel they have been slighted in the allotments of the more than three billion dollars they voted in the special session and will welcome the opportunity to air their grievances. There will be attempts to enlarge the PWA which promise endless debates.

The "battle over money" may result in anything. Despite the president's latest monetary move as regards silver, there are many

LAB PROTECTS ANIMAL HEALTH

Livestock And Poultry Diseases Are Fought In Animal Laboratory.

Over four hundred and eighty thousand specimens were examined in the Pennsylvania bureau of animal industry laboratory during 1933 to keep in check numerous transmissible livestock and poultry diseases, according to a report from Dr. M. F. Barnes, who is in charge. Specimens from 80,749 cattle, 469 horses, 1695 sheep, 203 swine, 2042 dogs, 392,447 chickens, 549 turkeys and 3316 other animals, came to the laboratory during the year.

In addition to the actual examinations of specimens, it is found necessary in many cases, to make extended, careful, investigations running over a period of time to reach definite conclusions on various disease problems which arise.

This painstaking work conducted by veterinarians trained in laboratory technique, is one of the first essentials to the state's efforts toward the prevention and control of transmissible livestock and poultry diseases, said Dr. T. E. Munce, director of the bureau of animal industry. Practicing veterinarians in all parts of the commonwealth send specimens to this laboratory. The examinations and scientific investigations are made promptly and the results, together with the recommendations, are reported to the veterinarians. In the case of the examination of dog brains for rabies, this work becomes extremely important and a direct service in the saving of human lives.

The number of specimens during 1933 exceeded the 1932 total by 35,162 or 12 per cent. The growth of the laboratory service is indicated by the records which show that 6189 specimens were examined in 1932; 64,180 in 1926; 200,000 in 1929; 317,000 in 1930; 392,246 in 1931; 446,299 in 1932; and 481,461 in 1933.

Professor Irving Fisher, economist of Yale university, says: "The old and apparently still persistent notion of 'the business cycle' is a myth."

who still believe a bitter struggle is in prospect.

Slumbering Volcanoes

Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, leader of the inflationists, takes the view that the new silver coinage policy will "only intensify the fight in congress for a cheaper dollar."

If he is right in his prediction that the president "has opened the door to all the various forms of monetary expansion," there is on telling what will happen.

These are only a few of the controversial issues likely to arise. There are others such as patronage banking legislation, criticisms of the numerous recovery agencies—any one of which is capable of prolonging the session indefinitely.

Hopes of an early adjournment, whether entertained by either house or senate leaders, can't be so very high, however pressing may be the need to get back home and strengthen political fences.

DRINK MILK

From Life Guard Fed Cows

Offered By WEANER'S!

It has been our constant effort not only to give you good milk, but milk that will carry with it the greatest health factors and body builders.

We are now glad to offer you the additional benefits that Iodine and balanced minerals can give in producing better health and stamina to meet present conditions.

As the result of research work at the Rowett Institute in England, and similar work at the Ohio Experiment Station and other research agencies in America, it has been determined that proper iodization of feed produces milk 10 to 30 times richer in Iodine than ordinary milk. Our cows are being fed a grain ration fortified with Life Guard, containing the percentage of Iodine approved by the Iodine Educational Bureau.

This means that the proper amount of this valuable mineral is available for the thyroid gland. It means that your digestion will be better, making nutrients, vitamins and minerals available for building up your body with plenty left over for energy and stamina.

If you are tired before the day is out, catch cold easily or lack pep, then give our Life Guard Milk a months test. Drink a Quart every day.

According to a health report made in Gettysburg, there were 59 quarantine cases from October 1 to January 1st; out of this number 10 cases were on our milk routes and we are proud to say that 7 out of these particular 10 cases were using two kinds of milk. Now over 300 homes are using this new scientific life guard milk in Gettysburg and vicinity.
